

WEF supports WHS exPRESS Newspaper

WHS exPRESS received financial assistance from WEF to help with printing costs. English Department member Nannette Farrell, advisor to the WHS school newspaper, supervises students with the WHS school newspaper that is printed once per term and distributed to students to share with parents, grandparents, family friends and local businesses. Ms. Farrell's objective is to continue to produce a well-written, well-designed student newspaper – an important aspect of student voice and freedom of speech. Journalism students attend monthly meetings and collaborate with Newspaper Club students to cover news, events, people and issues of interest to the WHS community. They also attend the New England Scholastic Press Association (NESPA) conference. The end result is a professional publication that reflects positively on WHS and is a source of pride for the school and for the larger community.

Pictured holding check is Nannette Farrell with her Journalism students.

