

WEF SUPPORTS HISTORICAL HARTSHORNE HOUSE

The Wakefield Educational Foundation (WEF) recently donated $500 to the Hartshorne House's Educational Outreach program, which conducts an educational program and essay contest about Wakefield's historic gem in the Wakefield schools each spring. The money will help defray the cost of materials, especially printing, prizes and crayons.

Shown in the Living Room of the historic home on Church Street are (left to right) WEF board member Chris Boulter, Hartshorne House director Mary Sullivan, House Association president Abigail Russell, House director Jay Landers ("The Colonial"), House Educational Outreach chairperson Martha Philbrick, and WEF co-president Beth Hendriks. WEF, which dispersed over $18,000 this year, is a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting academic excellence in the Wakefield Public Schools. The Officers and Directors of the Col. James Hartshorne House Association thank the Wakefield Education Foundation for its commitment to the community and its generosity to the Hartshorne House.
